Code Folding

The code folding feature automatically sorts code into a tree-like outline structure in SQL Editor. This increases navigation and clarification capacities during the code development process. It ensures that the file will be easily understood should any future work be required on the code.

As you work in SQL Editor, collapsible nodes are automatically inserted into the appropriate lines of code. Statements can then be expanded or collapsed as needed, and this feature is especially useful when working on parts of particularly large or complicated files.