

Manage your instances

Once you register your instances, SQL Elements allows you to manage them according to your requirements. For example, you can disable instances for maintenance plans or remove them if you decide not to monitor them anymore.

You can also edit your instances' properties like owner, location, tags, or change the credentials you use for collecting their information.

In this section, you can find detailed information on how to perform any of these actions and manage your instances according to your preferences.
